

Content

1	Introduction	5
<hr/>
2	Theoretical Background: Firm-level Innovation, Knowledge Creation, and Multilocal Interaction	7
<hr/>
2.1	Firm-level Innovation	7
2.1.1	Understanding Innovation Processes	7
2.1.2	Coordination of Internal and External Knowledge for Innovation Activities	8
2.2	The Geography of Innovation	9
2.2.1	Territorial Innovation Models, Advantages of Colocation, and Agglomeration Effects	9
2.2.2	From Geographical Proximity to Multilocal Interaction	10
2.2.3	Innovating Outside of Agglomerations	13
3	Rethinking Territorial Innovation and Firm Behaviour: a Research Agenda	15
<hr/>
3.1	A Changing Conceptualization of Knowledge: towards Knowledge Creation Processes and Knowledge Dynamics	15
3.2	Research Questions and Goals	16
3.3	Coping with the Complexity of Firm-level Innovation in Space: an Integrative Approach	18
3.4	Peripheral but Global: Work Programme	19
4	Conclusion	22
<hr/>
	Response Papers	23
<hr/>
	Response by Olivier Crevoisier	23
	Response by Michael Fritsch	24
	Response by Markus Grillitsch	25
	Response by Anna Growe	26
	Response by Richard G. Shearmur	29